➔ Ivanka's Unmentionables, Mentioned

Ivana and Ivanka Trump

It's gotta be tough to be the 'Vanks sometimes. First there's the whole surreal family dynasty to think about—the one where ole comb-over dad is a real estate mogul-turned-reality TV bully and mom serves as an endearing caricature of the international upper crust—and then there's the resulting, eye-blinding spotlight to contend with.

She's managed to endure all this with grace and aplomb, but now—no doubt partially due to her well-earned socialite rank and newly announced diamond designing career—Ivanka Trump has her shopping stalkers to contend with. There's a rumor going around that she was spotted buying underwear at Bergdorf Goodman yesterday, specifically a few lovely sweet-nothings from Le Mystere No. 9. Clearly the girl's got good taste, but perhaps she might want to consider shopping online instead? After all, the last thing a girl like her wants is to have any laundry—be it dirty, clean, brand-spanking new—airing out in the open.
